It provides colleges, universities, technical and private vocational schools as well as selected career areas, with an unprecedented opportunity to speak with and answer questions of future students and their parents/guardians. It’s an excellent chance for students in high school to examine their post-secondary options, and for students in grade nine to learn more about what courses in high school will best prepare them for their future educational and occupational goals. For parents and guardians, it provides an opportunity to discuss everything from admission averages to finances, from future career trends to high school requirements.

Students from grades 9 to 12 and interested parents/guardians are invited to take advantage of this information filled evening

---and it’s FREE!
